Greetings !

While considering that in the midst of coronavirus (Covid 19) global pandemic, Sri Lanka is doing well to control such conditions and is managing appropriate mechanisms to conduct public services without disruption with the involvement of both public and private sectors with state intervention in order to minimize impediments to carry out normal community life,

And, as it is imperative to establish a new economic agenda to promote exports in all sectors and uplift all local industries including local food production in a background where all global trends have shifted due to the current pandemic situation and overseas supplies have been suspended,

And, as the attention of the current government is focused on technology, research and innovation towards fulfilling expectations of the rural public, plantation communities and low income earning urban public who have been frustrated at their role not being properly evaluated in terms of their skills, exceptional abilities and potentials as well as their weaknesses and challenges in a context where during the past period, the local economic strengths had not been subject to due appraisal within the international context,

And, as the need has been clearly identified to create balanced social and economic development at the district level, through overall economic targets to be achieved by Sri Lanka in the future, the expectations recognized by the United Nations such as development, environmental conservation, renewable energy and toxin-free food production, as well as the need to minimize poverty and trends that enhance the gap between haves and have-nots in the context of global economic trends,

And, whereas, poverty has been a major drawback in achieving the said development goals for a secure and prosperous nation and that an unprecedented need has arisen for strategies to be adopted for empowerment of rural communities based on a people-centric economy,

And, as priority has to be given to the need to align national development programmes to the nation building strategy planned out in the state policy vision: Vistas of Prosperity and Splendour,

And, as a dedicated Presidential Task Force has been set up to expand health and education facilities at rural and regional levels, promote health, quality of food consumption and environment conservation, as well as skills and competencies of students, and priority has been given to expand health, education and skills opportunities,

And, as it is imperative that a unique economic framework with a novel approach is established by reviving small and medium scale enterprises through the established government machinery comprising central government ministries, district secretariats and divisional secretariats, and by expanding access for finance through Banking and Financial Institutions as appropriate for the rural, estate and low income earning people to be directly linked to the local economic empowerment process as entrepreneurs,

Now, therefore, I, Gotabaya Rajapaksa, President of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka reposing great trust and confidence in your prudence, ability and fidelity do by these presents appoint you the said,
